

The Various Ways of Knowing

Transdisciplinary Dialogues on Knowledge, Land, and People

Overview

This workshop explores the “various ways of knowing”, fostering cross-disciplinary dialogue on epistemic justice, challenging traditional academic boundaries and Western paradigms. At its core, the dialogue interrogates the structural inequalities that perpetuate a global dichotomy, characterized by the “visible” and the “invisible”, which dictates whose worldviews, values, and knowledge are legitimized.

Register at

<https://tinyurl.com/gsgs-workshop-kasa-writeshop>

Or scan the QR Code above

NOV. 5, 2026 (THU)
13:30 - 18:30
IN-PERSON
BLDG. 10, RM. 301

Discussants

Saturnino “Jun” Borrás Jr., PhD

Professor of Agrarian Studies and Development Studies, Erasmus University Rotterdam

Yoshihiro Nakano, PhD

Specially-appointed Associate Professor of Social Theory, Philosophy, and Critical Development Studies, Rikkyo University

Presentations

Autonomy as a Research Program? Linking IR Theory to Peasant and Indigenous Autonomy in Latin America

Samuel Conde Amorim

PhD Candidate in Area Studies, Sophia University

“We won, now what?” Knowing Land and Living the Afterlife of Customary Forest Recognition

Hanna Nur Afifah Yogar, PhD

PhD Researcher, Chulalongkorn University

Fractured Cycles and Foreign Land: Reframing Transboundary Clothing Waste as Circular Fashion in Japan

Beatrice Melo, PhD

Adjunct Lecturer, Yokohama National University

Political Ecology of Myanmar’s Contested Borderlands: The Production of Power and Class in the Political Economy of Kachin State

Sinwa Naw, PhD

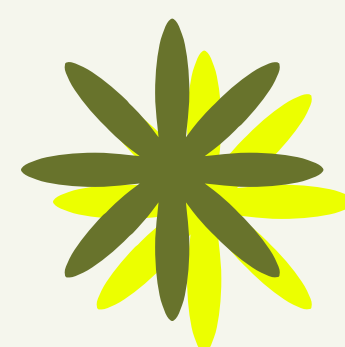

PhD in Global Studies, Sophia University

For more information, contact

Graduate School of Global Studies,
Sophia University, 7-1 Kioicho,
Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo 102-8554

Website: <https://gs.sophia.ac.jp/en/>

Email: gds-gs@sophia.ac.jp

上智大学 大学院 グローバル・スタディーズ研究科
Graduate School of Global Studies
Sophia University • Tokyo

上智大学
SOPHIA UNIVERSITY

KASA
Sustainability